work is more deadly than war and the u s has one of the highest rates of occupational fatality in the developed world why after a century of reform are u s workers growing less secure michael piore and andrew schrank show how regulation can be a generative force for both workers and employers rather than the job killer of neoliberal theory

all cities and regions prioritize economic growth for a simple reason it is essential to wellbeing and progress but what are the sources of growth the eminent scholar of innovation dan breznitz contends that the answer lies in global supply networks in innovation in real places he examines the four stages of production and argues that struggling regions cannot improve their circumstances by imitating tech centric economies rather they need to develop their own strengths and they can do this by focusing on where they best fit in a globalized production system all cities and localities have certain strengths and the trick is in recognizing it for policymakers economics is a useful tool in the development and evaluation of public policy and like many sciences economics is evolving to become more interdisciplinary in its approach today economic theory is often used in conjunction with insights gleaned from psychology and sociology to create a more inclusive real world approach to implementing public policy in this book five award winning economists tackle a diverse range of topics and show how applied economics has evolved to give policymakers a more nuanced approach to policy development the award winning economists included in this volume are erica field nancy folbre avner grief david m kreps and michael j piore and the topics they discuss include microfinance human capital societal institutions worker motivation and workplace regulation monograph using marxism occupational sociology to interpret relationships between labour productivity capitalism and monopoly in a factory in chicago usa develops a theory of the capitalist labour productivity process and its variations in light of working class consciousness economic recession employee consent and the obscuring and securing of surplus value and discusses struggles in labour relations class and competition orientation bibliography pp 253 to 262 issues such as globalization and the fight against joblessness as well as the growth dynamics of economies in general have been linked with science and technology accordingly the growing public interest in the effects of science and technology on society and politics and vice versa have been the foremost reason for the creation of this study one of the central questions for politicians as well as for scholars in the field of science and technology is how can i influence a given science and technology system in a way so as to achieve optimal outcomes for a given national economy the study at hand tries to answer this question by analyzing the hungarian research sphere from industrialization until the late 20th century since the beginning of industrialization hungary has made a number of attempts to catch up with the economically more developed western european countries the problems encountered in the course of the hungarian efforts are surprisingly similar to the difficulties that modern fully industrialized economies are facing today in the past few years a considerable number of immigrants have established their own businesses in doing so they have contributed in many ways to the economic development of american and european metropolitan areas some businesses have been incorporated into the mainstream while others have stayed on the economic fringes and got engaged in the informal economy the starting point of this book is that a proper understanding of these businesses is served by focusing on the embeddedness of immigrant businesses in their economic politico institutional and social environments from a multi disciplinary perspective rather than confining the attention to ethnic cultural or economic sociological aspects only
